FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

Nashua Patent Law Firm Goes Deep
Adds former BAE Systems Attorney Dan Long as “Of Counsel”

NASHUA, NH – August 2015 – Maine Cernota & Rardin, an intellectual property law firm based in Nashua, also known as MCR, is pleased to announce its affiliation with Attorney Dan Long, formerly of BAE Systems Electronic Systems of Nashua, as “of counsel” to the firm. For the past thirteen years Dan has served as the Senior Intellectual Property Counsel for BAE Systems, where he represented that company in intellectual property matters in a high technology, complex Government contracting environment. Prior to his time at BAE Systems, Dan also held responsible intellectual property positions at FCI Electronics, Inc. and PPG Industries, Inc., and at the law firm of Parmelee, Miller, Welsh & Kratz.

According to MCR’s founding attorney Vern Maine: “Dan brings with him a wealth of knowledge, skill, and practical legal experience in the acquisition and management of intellectual property. This adds both breadth and depth to the firm’s capabilities and will benefit our clients both directly and indirectly over time.”

Dan is a graduate of the US Naval Academy and served as an artillery officer in the US Marine Corps. He received his Juris Doctor from The University of Pittsburgh School of Law. He is admitted to practice before the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania and the US Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit and is registered to practice at the US Patent and Trademark Office. Dan is also a member of the American Intellectual Property Law Association and the Licensing Executives Society. He resides with his wife, Maureen, in Amherst, New Hampshire. Dan can be reached at dlong@mcr-ip.com.
